

Noel named Sagicor's executive VP Caribbean

DAVID NOEL has been appointed executive vice-president and chief operating officer, Caribbean, at Sagicor Financial, effective September 8.

In his new role, Noel will report to Andre Mousseau, president and chief executive officer of Sagicor Financial.

'David joins Sagicor from Scotiabank where he most recently served as chief operating officer, Canadian Banking. Prior to moving to Canada, David held senior executive positions across Scotiabank's Caribbean footprint, including president and chief executive officer of Scotiabank Jamaica (inclusive of The Bahamas, Cayman Islands, Turks and Caicos, British Virgin Islands and Belize), and prior to that, managing director, Scotiabank Barbados and Head, Caribbean East,' a release from Sagicor stated yesterday.

In his new role at Sagicor, Noel will be responsible for driving operational strategy, execution, and performance across the Caribbean region.

'In this capacity he will work closely with the teams of Sagicor's Caribbean subsidiaries, including Sagicor Life Inc and Sagicor Group Jamaica Ltd, each of whose chief executives will continue to report to Mr Mousseau. Mr Noel will be a member of Sagicor's executive committee,' it stated.

Mousseau said he was excited to welcome Noel to Sagicor.
